Department of Chemistry

Report on Soil Analysis 2022-2023

Department of Chemistry organizes different social activity among this soil analysis is one of the important aspect of it. Under this section we have made linkage with C.S.P.A college of agriculture, Ashti. Which gives us brief idea of the particular area, soil analysis is carried out to provide information on the physical and chemical properties of soils. This information is important for farmer to select appropriate crops and management practices. The main properties of soils that are analysed include texture, structure, porosity, drainage, pH, organic matter, nutrient content and contamination. Soil analysis can also provide information on the suitability of soils for different uses, such as agriculture, forestry, horticulture or engineering.

The results of soil analysis can be used to:

- Determine the type of crops that can be grown successfully on a piece of land.
- Plan the fertilizer and irrigation requirements for a crop.
- Develop a weed control program.
- Determine the best time to sow or harvest a crop.
- Estimate the soil's capacity to store water.
- Plan the management of agricultural wastes.
- Identify areas of land that are contaminated and need to be cleaned up.

We have arranged workshop for the Soil Analysis, Soil Conservation and water conservation farmer in collaboration with Panni Foundation at Bhagwan Mahavidyalaya, Ashti, Tal- Ashti, Dist- Beed. Our batch of 50 students and Mentor of Paani Foundation guided to all farmers and solved their doubts till they satisfy. They have expressed their gratitude towards college and paani foundation for such great activity.
